Spring Break

Planned so that students return one full week before SAT testing. Spring break may be scheduled for the last week in March, and may include the beginning of April, depending on how the calendar falls. This was adjusted to align with the testing schedule in the State of Michigan when SAT dates changed and give students one full week of classes before testing begins. Consideration for moving spring break one week later will be discussed at future common calendar planning meetings pending the outcome of the state assessment changes in SAT test administration and testing window.
